Busy Hongkong cuisine restaurant in Carlingford gets a face lift.

The Hongkong Café is a chain of successful food outlets that serve traditional Hong Kong café style menu. Our design brief is to completely revamp the existing tired looking interior including upgrading the kitchen. The final result boasts vibrant modern fit out that consists of booth style seating arrangement along the perimeter of the premise and table arrangement in the middle. The graphic brings back memories of Hong Kong famous sceneries and skyline as well as pictures of selected food from the menu.

Green retailer.

Set your store different from competitor for being recognized as green retailer, the new trend in retail design. Being a green retailer is not about placing some pot plants in the shop or having a vertical garden as a feature wall but stores that innovatively use sustainable design elements in their store interiors such as environmentally friendly material, energy savings lighting, etc.

The contradictions of Contemporary Chinese Architecture

Despite already being the world's most populated country, China's growth is showing no signs of slowing, causing massive expansion in its established cities as well as creating entirely new urban areas. The considerable challenges caused by rapid urbanisation are definitely experienced by all developed countries, but in China – a country immensely proud of its rich traditions – it is creating a unique and fascinating contradiction within its modern architecture.
